Countertops

Countertops are essential for a functional kitchen and can enhance the beauty of your home. Choosing the right one can bring your design together and add beauty to your home.

Features

Quartz is an engineered stone. It is durable, antimicrobial, and maintenance-free. Quartz’s non-porous surface blocks liquids and stains from penetrating through the stone, and therefore, quartz countertops do not have to be sealed. As quartz is manmade, its slabs usually have a uniform pattern.

Composite granite is manufactured with 95% natural stone and 5% resin. Resistant to heat and scratches, composite granite is incredibly durable and nearly indestructible. With its non-porous quality, composite granite is effortless to maintain.

Hard, heat-resistant, and scratch-resistant, granite is a popular choice for kitchen countertops and islands. As a natural stone, each granite slab has unique colors and patterns. Granite’s renowned durability and its variety of colors make it ideal for kitchen uses.

Marble is one of the most popular choices when it comes to natural stone countertops. Elegant and luxurious, marble countertops usually have larger patterns with unique veining than granite. Marble is porous, and therefore, protecting marble countertops against etching and staining is required with periodical sealing.
