Countertops are essential for a functional kitchen and can enhance the beauty of your home. Choosing the right one can bring your design together and add beauty to your home.

Quartz

Quartz is an engineered stone. It is durable, antimicrobial, and maintenance-free. Quartz’s non-porous surface blocks liquids and stains from penetrating through the stone, and therefore, quartz countertops do not have to be sealed. As quartz is manmade, its slabs usually have a uniform pattern.

Quartzite

Quartzite is a natural metamorphic stone formed from sandstone. Through heat and pressure, sandstone or quartz-rich chert transforms into quartzite, typically containing over 90% quartz – sometimes up to 99%. Its high quartz content makes it extremely hard, with excellent resistance to scratches, heat, and wear, making it a durable choice for surfaces.
